It is already clear to everyone that water is very much necessary for the existence of life on earth. Our each and every activity is dependent on the water. Though we are surrounded by huge water bodies (around three-fourth of the Earth's surface) on earth, but fresh water available on the earth is only 2.5% in the form of glaciers out of which only 1% is fit for drinking. So it becomes important for us to save water and avoid its wastage.

Water gets contaminated from the waste materials of industries, sewage, toxic chemicals and other waste products. The main reason of water scarcity and clean water contamination is the ever increasing population avoid rapid industrialization and urbanization. The improper waste disposable system is also majorly responsible for the contamination of water.

There is already a scarcity of water so it becomes important that whatever quantity is available on earth should be used properly without any wastage. We should also raise the awareness regarding the 'Save Water' initiative so that we can preserve water for the future generations and also for other species that are surviving on earth.

Due to the clean water scarcity, people cannot fulfill their basic needs in many areas. According to the recent study, it has been found that around 19% of Indian population does not have access to fresh water. We need to join hands together to deal with the clean water scarcity through various best and most suitable methods with the motto "Save water, Save Life, Save World".
